Laboratory Procedures

Glabridin is supplied as a crystalline solid. A stock solution may be made by dissolving the glabridin in the solvent of choice. Glabridin is soluble in organic solvents such as ethanol, DMSO, and dimethyl formamide (DMF), which should be purged with an inert gas. The solubility of glabridin in ethanol and DMSO is approximately 20 mg/ml and approximately 30 mg/ml in DMF.

Glabridin is sparingly soluble in aqueous buffers. For maximum solubility in aqueous buffers, glabridin should first be dissolved in DMF and then diluted with the aqueous buffer of choice. Glabridin has a solubility of approximately 0.14 mg/ml in a 1:6 solution of DMF:PBS (pH 7.2) using this method. We do not recommend storing the aqueous solution for more than one day.

Description

Glabridin is a prenylated isoflavonoid found in licorice root extract that is reported to possess antiviral, antimicrobial, anti-inflammatory, antidiabetic, antiatherogenic, antioxidant, antitumor, and estrogen-like properties.¹⁻³ These diverse biological activities are largely related to the capacity of glabridin to down-regulate reactive oxygen species, bind to antioxidant effectors, and act as a selective estrogen receptor modulator.⁴
