Laboratory Procedures

27-alkyne Cholesterol is supplied as a crystalline solid. A stock solution may be made by dissolving the 27-alkyne cholesterol in the solvent of choice. 27-alkyne Cholesterol is soluble in organic solvents such as ethanol, DMSO, and dimethyl formamide, which should be purged with an inert gas. The solubility of 27-alkyne cholesterol in these solvents is approximately 20, 0.1, and 2 mg/ml, respectively.

27-alkyne Cholesterol is sparingly soluble in aqueous buffers. For maximum solubility in aqueous buffers, 27-alkyne cholesterol should first be dissolved in ethanol and then diluted with the aqueous buffer of choice. 27-alkyne Cholesterol has a solubility of approximately 0.3 mg/ml in a 1:2 solution of ethanol:PBS (pH 7.2) using this method. We do not recommend storing the aqueous solution for more than one day.

Description

27-alkyne Cholesterol is an alkyne derivative of cholesterol. It has been used to track cholesterol metabolism and localization using click chemistry and various reporter azides in fixed or living cells.¹ It is a substrate for enzymes from a variety of species including bacteria, yeast, rat, and human.
