Laboratory Procedures

Pirenzepine (hydrochloride) is supplied as a crystalline solid. Aqueous solutions of pirenzepine (hydrochloride) can be prepared by directly dissolving the crystalline solid in aqueous buffers. The solubility of pirenzepine (hydrochloride) in PBS, pH 7.2, is approximately 10 mg/ml. We do not recommend storing the aqueous solution for more than one day.

Description

Pirenzepine is an antagonist of M₁ muscarinic acetylcholine receptors (K_i = 11.48 nM).¹ It is selective for M₁ over M₂, M₃, and M₄ receptors (K_is = 602.56, 151.36, and 199.53 nM, respectively). Pirenzepine inhibits ascending reflex contraction of the circular smooth muscle in isolated guinea pig ileal segments induced by intraluminal balloon inflation (IC₅₀ = 501.19 nM). It inhibits methacholine-induced increases in ileal pressure in guinea pigs (ID₅₀ = 724.44 nmo/kg). Pirenzepine inhibits oxotremorine-induced gastric ulcer, gastric acid secretion, and salivation in rats (ED₅₀s = 13, 37.5, and 620 µg/kg i.v., respectively).² It prevents form-deprivation myopia (FDM) in a chick model of experimental myopia.³
