Laboratory Procedures

(PEO)3-monoamine is supplied as a liquid. A stock solution may be made by dissolving the (PEO)3-monoamine in the solvent of choice, which should be purged with an inert gas. (PEO)3-monoamine is soluble in organic solvents such as ethanol, DMSO, and dimethyl formamide. The solubility of (PEO)3-monoamine in these solvents is approximately 15, 10, and 30 mg/ml, respectively.

Further dilutions of the stock solution into aqueous buffers or isotonic saline should be made prior to performing biological experiments. Ensure that the residual amount of organic solvent is insignificant, since organic solvents may have physiological effects at low concentrations. Organic solvent-free aqueous solutions of (PEO)3-monoamine can be prepared by directly dissolving the liquid in aqueous buffers. The solubility of (PEO)3-monoamine in PBS, pH 7.2, is approximately 10 mg/ml. We do not recommend storing the aqueous solution for more than one day.

Description

(PEO)3-monoamine is a poly(ethylene oxide) (PEO) blocking reagent that prevents nonspecific adsorption of analytes in applications using covalent protein coupling such as ELISA.¹ It reduces the adsorption of IgG when coated on carboxylic-terminated surfaces.
